ALICE — And such a beautiful coat.

DICK — Well, it's an old one - I think I got it from ...

ALICE — I shall just simply have to tickle his tummy!

ALICE WALKS PAST DICK TO TOMMY WHO ROLLS ONTO HIS BACK AND ALICE TICKLES HIM

DICK — Oh, you mean .... the cat

ALICE — Is he yours?

DICK — Um .... Yes! This is Tommy. Tommy, get up and say hello to the lovely lady.

TOMMY GETS UP AND RUBS HIMSELF ON ALICE

TOMMY — Miaow!

ALICE — Hello, Tommy.

TOMMY SCAMPERS BEHIND DICK

Oh - who are you?

DICK — I'm THIGH SLAP Richard Whittington, but you can call me Dick

ALICE — Dick - there's something about that name I like.

DICK — And what do they call you?

ALICE — Oh - Alice.

DICK — Alice. I like that name. You're very pretty.

ALICE — So are you - oh - I mean handsome.

TOMMY IS FEELING LEFT OUT AND RUBS HIMSELF ON DICK

What an adorable cat.

DICK — To tell the truth, Alice, we're both very hungry and tired and in desperate need of a job and a place to stay.

ALICE — Well, that's no problem. You can work in my father's store, but there's nothing Tommy can do there.

DICK — Ahh

TOMMY DOES SOME BIG MOVEMENTS

ALICE What's he saying?

DICK E equals MC squared - No - really - he says he is an expert at catching mice.

ALICE Of course! That's it, he can work as the mouse catcher. The place is overrun with mice.

DICK I'm so pleased I met you. I really like you.
